

Ad hoc Desktop Sharing

A picture is worth than a thousand words

Netviewer allows internet users to view each others screens simultaneously. Any application can be discussed and edited jointly: websites, contracts, calculations, drafts, plans and more. As communication will become more efficient, time, money and nerves are saved. Netviewer has been singled out for praise many times, and is in use across the board in small and medium scale businesses as well as in international corporations.

The 4 Netviewer advantages

- No installation necessary (neither at the support service nor customer side)
- Operates through firewalls (with 128 bit encoding)
- Easy to use
- Unique features (change of viewing direction, pointer, choice of applications, enabling/disabling of remote control)

Netviewer allows you to watch the screen of a remote PC. Once the connection has been established, the watch-mode user has initially no access to the show-mode PC. By enabling or disabling the remote control, the watch-mode user can work directly on his opponent's PC. The viewing direction can be changed at any time using the Netviewer control panel (as highlighted in the right hand circle).

Areas of application

Sales and online support

Whether you want to show a software program, a PowerPoint presentation or a website – with Netviewer it is like sitting together with your customer in one room, or carrying out a sales meeting across a real shop counter. You save time and money and can offer the perfect service to your customers. Generate leads quickly and successfully with Netviewer supported cold calls.

Software Support

Netviewer makes software support very easy. There is no need for the typical questions such as "What's on your screen?" or "At which step are you?", since the support person can see this for himself. The support person can show the user where to click using a pointer or the user can enable (and at any time disable) remote control of his computer for the support person.

Business as usual

Netviewer will become part of everyday working life as telephone, fax or e-mail. Any document, whether a technical report or a sales plan can be jointly edited. Clarification and joint discussion of design drawings or even x-rays is made easily, speeding up the decision-making process. Enhance your internal collaboration and communication by using Netviewer companywide.
